WELCOME TO THE FAMILY!

I'm thrilled you'll join the Missouri State campus community in supporting your student in their transition to university life.

It wasn't too long ago that I sent my daughters to college. I didn't know what to expect. I was excited for the next chapter in their lives, but I was also nervous of the changes that would take place at home and with my student. Would my student be safe at college? Would my student still "need" me? What was my role as the family member of a college student?

At Missouri State, we place great value on student success — in and out of the classroom. We know that family members, like you, play a vital role in supporting your student through their university experience.

With the outstanding academic, professional and co-curricular opportunities provided on our campus, your student will be able to explore new interests, solidify existing passions and discover their role in making communities better places to live and work.

Please encourage your student to take advantage of the opportunities at Missouri State. By being an informed partner, equipped with knowledge of campus resources, events and policies, you'll be prepared to coach your student toward success.

That's exactly why we have designed resources especially for you. I invite you to use, read and/or visit:

- This calendar.
- The Bear Family Guide.
- Our blog and other social media platforms, found through the family programs website:

MissouriState.edu/BearsFamilies

Discuss these resources with your student, because communicating is integral in promoting your Bear's growth. Our partnership can help ensure success. We're excited your student has chosen to attend Missouri State, and I wish you both the best during the transition to university life.

Please don't hesitate to contact me at any time. I am very happy to help.

MAKE PLANS TO VISIT YOUR STUDENT!

Missouri State hosts special events to welcome family members to campus throughout the academic year, like our Family Weekend and Spring Family Day at Hammons Field. However, we encourage families to visit us whenever it's convenient for you and your student. Quick note: We don't recommend surprising your student with a visit. Our students are very busy and if they are surprised, they might already have commitments and not be able to spend time with you.

We have a Visitors Guide online to help you plan your trip. It has details on accommodations near campus, directions, parking information, Springfield attractions, dining options and much more!

What will college be like?

STUDENTS: HERE'S WHAT YOU CAN EXPECT IN YOUR FIRST YEAR

- To be challenged academically and personally.
- To be a part of a diverse community with many different perspectives, ethnicities, cultures and experiences.
- To be assured many helpful resources are available.

FAMILIES: HERE'S HOW YOU CAN SUPPORT YOUR BEAR

- Listen when your student is talking.
- Empower your student to solve their own problems.
- Familiarize yourself with campus resources that can be helpful to your student.
- Know that your student may change their mind and major — which is okay!

So, you've been through SOAR. What's next?

Student Orientation, Advisement and Registration, or SOAR, should have helped you and your student prepare for arrival on campus this fall. There are a few other things your family can do to support a smooth transition.

- Teach your student practical skills such as doing laundry, managing a budget and more. These skills will help your student feel more independent and confident. Discuss expectations regarding academics, social activities, finances, employment and other important topics.
- Know what to bring (and NOT bring):
 ResLife.MissouriState.edu/WhatToBring
- For commuters, remind your student that college is not an extension of high school. Encourage your student to stay on campus between classes, attend events and get involved in organizations.

"An easy way to support a college student would be sending a thoughtful message to them. I always appreciate when my mom sends me a quick text to let me know she loves me, is proud of me and hopes I have a good day. It is simple but puts a pep in my step for the day."

- Tamia Schiele, senior

ACADEMIC TERMS YOU AND YOUR STUDENT NEED TO KNOW!

- Credit hour: Standard unit of measuring coursework.
 The unit of credit used at Missouri State is the semester hour.
- Degree audit: An advising tool that helps track a student's progress towards graduation. MSU uses Degree Works for audits.
- General education program: The basic courses all undergraduate students are required to take, regardless of their major.
- Prerequisite: Things students must do before they can enroll in a class.
 These may be courses, test scores or a program of study.

August is an important month for all Bears!

It's when students start settling into new classes, making new friends and finding resources to succeed.

Involvement on campus is a tremendously important factor in your student's success. Students who are connected with campus life, both residential and commuter students, tend to do better academically, learn to manage their time and have an easier adjustment.

FAMILIES: REMIND YOUR STUDENT ABOUT AVAILABLE RESOURCES

Surveys of college students indicate stress can hurt academic performance. With the transition from high school, your student may begin to experience some academic pressure. Remind them of resources on campus, such as the Bear CLAW, Writing Center, peer leaders, professors and advisors. If your student shows signs of serious physical, emotional or mental stress, encourage them to seek help through the dean of students office or the Counseling Center:

- MissouriState.edu/DOS
- CounselingCenter.MissouriState.edu

IMPORTANT SUPPORT SYSTEM

- Missouri State programs are more academically rigorous than high school.
 Help your student understand the personal and professional benefits of the knowledge and skills they are gaining.
- Time management is a crucial skill for students to develop early. A planner, available at the Missouri State Bookstore, is a handy place to log assignments and commitments.
- Periodically ask your student if they are going to class, keeping up with assignments and seeking help when needed.
- If your student lives in the residence halls, consider mailing care packages.
- If your student is a commuter student, consider leaving encouraging notes and treats in their car or backpack.
- When your student passes a big test, receives an award or joins a special organization, let them know how proud you are!

How to be a #CitizenBear: Go to the Public Affairs Conference

During this free event, you will be able to hear from some of the nation's most compelling speakers. Previous examples include former first daughter Jenna Bush Hager, now a media personality; Gen. Colin L. Powell, former secretary of state; and actor John Goodman, an MSU alumnus. There are a variety of sessions planned.

PublicAffairs.MissouriState.edu/ Conference

OUR MISSION: PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The moment your student chose Missouri State, they became part of something much bigger than campus. Missouri State has a mission in public affairs. Your student's education will be different because of this mission. They will find an emphasis on understanding the world and making it a better place. They will engage with the community. Your student will be ready to work and live with people from all different backgrounds.

THE THREE PILLARS OF THE MISSION

Our public affairs mission includes academic programs, experiences outside the classroom and events throughout the year. The mission is driven by three themes:

- Ethical leadership is striving for excellence and integrity. Students develop ethical and moral reasoning while contributing to the common good.
- Cultural competence begins with cultural self-awareness and expands to knowledge of, respect for and skills to interact with people of other cultures.
- Community engagement is recognizing needs in our communities, then contributing your knowledge and work to meet those needs.

IN SEPTEMBER, FAMILIES CAN:

- Expect to hear about your student's trials and tribulations more frequently than you'll hear about the triumphs. Be an open ear with a positive attitude, and your student will likely come away with a more positive outlook.
- Encourage your student to get to know their professors and ask for help if needed. Remind them about office hours and suggest they take advantage of these times to have one-on-one conversations.
- Forgetfulness, moodiness and fatigue can all be early signs of stress. Bears need to make stress management a part of their everyday college life. Encourage your student to visit the Counseling Center if they are experiencing stress. All full-time counseling staff are licensed professionals, experienced with college-aged students and have a passion for helping our Bears. Encourage your student to make time for - themselves and their mental well-being.

How can families help their Bear during midterms?

It's October: The warm winds of summer are fading as cooler breezes rustle brightly colored leaves.

Students start Homecoming events: painting windows, building floats for the annual parade and proudly displaying their BearWear.

Near the end of the month, they don Halloween costumes as they look toward a much-deserved break in November.

But October also means midterms.

This celebration of knowledge is known by other names, of course. The least offensive four-letter word — test — is one of the many we prefer not to use. You can flunk a test.

We prefer to call them "celebrations of learning." It's a special time affording them the opportunity to prove what they know by answering a series of questions posed by their professors. After all, you can't flunk a celebration.

Help us remove the stigma of midterm week and help your student celebrate their accomplishments.

IN OCTOBER, FAMILIES CAN:

- Send notes of encouragement: You can do it! We believe in you! We're proud of you!
- Suggest your student study in advance. We recommend about 30 minutes a day for at least five days prior to the examination.
- Suggest your student take advantage of the Foster Recreation Center. Wellness and working out can help stress.

TRADITION OF THE MONTH

"It's helpful to support your college students during this (sometimes) stressful time. It's a preview of their finals. Remember they might communicate less because there's only so much time in the day. Send them a care package full of healthy snacks and a note that helps reframe this time of year."

Michael Frizell, director of student learning services

Bears get a holiday break

November is a big month for students. They are getting ready for final exams and big assignments, and preparing for Thanksgiving break.

It's important to discuss expectations before break. Since starting college, your student has a new sense of independence. While it's appropriate for your student to respect house rules, it's also a good idea to renegotiate rules that respect your needs and those of your student's.

SOME THINGS STUDENTS WOULD LIKE THEIR FAMILIES TO KNOW:

- "When I go home for the holidays, I wish my family would remember I've been living on my own for the last five months and still need to have my space at home."
- "When I'm on break from school, I wish my family would avoid making a lot of plans of places for me to go. When I come home from school, I'm tired of running from one thing to another. Most of the time I just want to relax."
- "I wish my family would remember that while I'm coming home to spend time with them, I haven't seen my closest friends for a long time. I want to spend time with my family, but at the same time, I want to be able to enjoy the rare time I get with others who are a part of my life."

IN NOVEMBER, FAMILIES CAN:

- Learn to compromise. Converse and reason, even when it's hard. Try to stop making demands.
- Stop seeing this as lingering days of childhood, but rather, the first moments of adulthood
- Adopt a wait-and-see attitude until the next break if your student is struggling to connect in or outside of the classroom, but there is not a mental health concern.
- Work together to build a calendar for the rest of the academic year.
- Be conscious that students recognize they go through a lifestyle change. However, any changes you exhibit or any change to the environments they left in the summer might be met with resistance.

Majors may be on your Bear's mind

Now that your student has completed a semester, they may consider choosing or changing their major. This is the time for them to explore many interests. They may benefit from an internship or other employment opportunities. Encourage them to contact their advisor and the Career Center. More on majors:

TRADITION OF THE MONTH

As the semester is winding down, also encourage your Bear to practice self-care! They can get a free flu shot at Magers Health and Wellness.

IN DECEMBER, FAMILIES CAN:

- Offer support during the last weeks of the semester. Send a card, give a pep talk, text a cute video that will make your student smile. Remember these last weeks are busy, so your student's time will be at a premium.
- wour student academically. Your student might have some unexpected grades at the end of the semester. Try not to overreact if you think their work doesn't meet your expectations. Have conversations about the upcoming semester and help your student reflect on the past semester.

		NEW YEAR'S EVE

Look ahead as a new semester starts

Spring semester is a chance to reflect on the fall semester and learn from any missteps. If your student did not perform to their expectations, take this time to evaluate what they can do differently going forward.

It's helpful to remind your student that they now have a semester of experience to draw upon. Ask them to share some examples of good decisions made during the previous semester, such as sticking with a study plan, getting help from a campus resource or joining a student organization. Helping your student acknowledge these successes can give them the confidence to perform well in the future.

Now is also a good time to decide on summer plans. Employment, internships, classes and service experiences are common options for students. Students should prepare by developing resumes, completing job applications and/or meeting with their academic advisors.

IN JANUARY, FAMILIES CAN:

- Remind your student the new year is a good time to review their financial situation, apply for more scholarships, complete the FAFSA and make a budget.
- Encourage your student to check out organizations on campus related to their interests and hobbies. It's never too late to get involved!

Now is a great time for your Bear to get career guidance

Missouri State's Career Center is a valuable resource for any student.

The Career Center helps students learn how to direct their own development. These skills are useful during college, immediately after graduation and throughout anyone's professional life.

The Career Center recommends students use its services right away. Early planning can greatly contribute to future career success. Consider giving your student some encouragement to meet with a career counselor during their first year.

CareerCenter.MissouriState.edu

IN FEBRUARY, FAMILIES CAN:

- Affirm your student's talents and personality traits.
- Listen (nonjudgmentally) to your student's thoughts about classes and activities. You may have helpful insights.
- Encourage your student to balance social life and academics. They can develop study skills and enjoy a variety of activities.
- Recommend that your student investigate job responsibilities and gain work experience by obtaining an internship.

Help your student have a fun, safe Spring Break

Your student may come home for Spring Break. If, however, they have plans for a more exotic vacation, keep some things in mind:

- If your student wants to travel, several MSU organizations sponsor service trips.
- Know your student's itinerary, where they are staying and how they can be reached while away.

IN MARCH, FAMILIES CAN:

- Reiterate that Spring Break doesn't mean a break from responsibility or a free pass for certain behaviors. Have a frank discussion about the risks of drug use, drinking, alcohol poisoning, violent behavior and sexual assault.
- Remind your student of the serious consequences of drinking alcohol or using drugs. Make the point that the impact can be detrimental to health and academic success. An alcohol- or drug-related arrest record may derail admission to graduate school, obtaining professional certification or getting a future job.
- Communicate that whatever happens on a trip could affect their ability to finish the semester.

It's time to register for classes!

We believe it is important that a knowledgeable, caring advisor helps students make their academic plans. That's why students with fewer than 75 credit hours are required to have an advising appointment before they register.

Have your student get an early advising appointment: That helps ensure they can register on their sequenced date.

Flexibility is important. Sometimes courses close or are canceled. Encourage your student to make trial class schedules and have alternative courses in mind.

Students should confirm they have taken any prerequisites for courses they plan to take. If not, it will cause problems at registration time.

IN APRIL, FAMILIES CAN:

- Encourage your student to make an appointment with their academic advisor as soon as possible. Before seeing the advisor, your student should review their degree audit and prepare a list of courses they are considering.
- Encourage your student to prioritize their top courses. Breaks between courses can be useful for quick trips to the library or study sessions with classmates.

Balance wellness at finals frenzy

It's time for final exams. Your student is almost done with a year of college! When things get busy, it's easy for your student to forget they need self-care. Exercise, good nutrition, self-affirmation and a good night's sleep all can help your student succeed.

IN MAY, FAMILIES CAN:

- Encourage your student to take advantage of Campus Rec facilities. Even a quick workout will energize your student.
- Talk to your student about food options and what they've been choosing to eat.
- Remind your student their professors are ready to assist them. Taking a few minutes to ask questions and get a different perspective helps your student finish strong.

Prepare for a successful second year

Summer goes quickly — and so does college. This is a good time to discuss options that will maximize your student's time at Missouri State and set them up for success in their second year.

Consider telling your student about our Second-Year Experience. This program is designed for students who are returning.

The second year typically serves as a time when students seriously contemplate their academic and professional careers. The next steps on the path may seem uncertain.

BECOME A MEMBER OF THE

MISSOURI STATE FAMILY ASSOCIATION

Families who support their students need their own type of support — and the Missouri State Family Association provides it. The Family Association is a program designed to help give parents and family members like you a number of helpful resources, including:

- Information about Missouri State programs, services and events through our Family Connection blog, Bear Notes, our e-newsletter and regular emails.
- Special campus events such as Family Weekend and Spring Family Day.
- A first point of contact for parents and families who need answers to questions or referrals to appropriate departments or resources.
- Opportunities to participate in Missouri State programs and initiatives.
